The club's details, dive sites and how the site looks

Keep the club's own information up to date: contact details, pool night, the club's rules, where you dive, and the look and language everyone starts with.

Where

Members admin → Data.

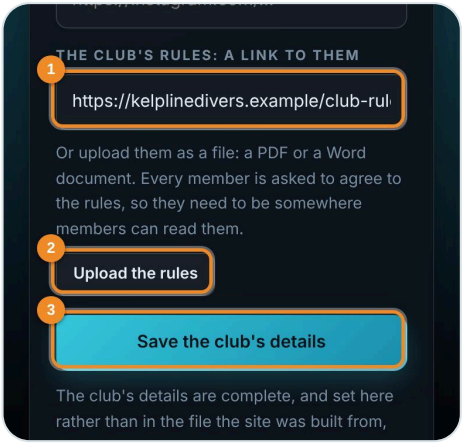

Changes show at once

Everything here saves straight away for every member. No files, no hosting login.

The club's details

1. Change and save
   The club's website, contact email, where you meet, pool night, full address, what goes under the club's name, where you go afterwards, the boat, one sentence for the footer, and Facebook and Instagram. Press Save the club's details.

2. The club's rules
   Members are asked to agree to the rules, so they need somewhere to read them: paste a link, or press Upload the rules to attach a PDF or Word document. The site tells you at the bottom of the card if the rules are still missing.

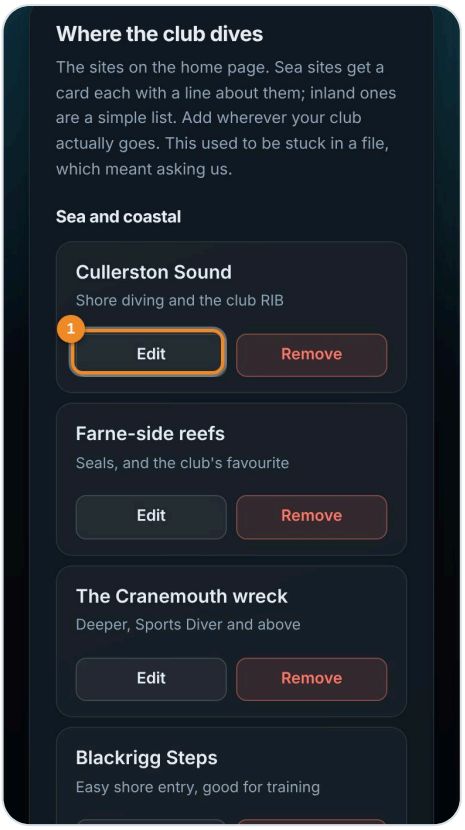

1 a link to the rules, 2 or upload them, 3 Save the club's details.

Where the club dives

1 Add or change a site

The dive sites members see on the home page. Sea sites get a card each with a line about them; inland ones are a simple list. Press Edit or Remove on a site, or Add a sea site / Add an inland site.

1 Edit a site, 2 Add a sea site.

Look and language

1 Pick the club's default

Under How the site looks, choose Dark, Light, Underwater or Coral, and under Language the language the site is read in. This is what everybody sees unless they pick their own from the footer (guide M14).

1 the four looks.

FoxFace Diving how-to guides, guide C12. Pictures are from Kelpline Divers, a made-up club; your club's site shows your own names and kit. Made by FoxFace. Version 2, October 2026.