Registering a club, and the first logins

How a club signs up, pays, and gets its site and its starter logins in a few minutes.

Where

clubs.foxface.io/register/ on a computer or phone. Not in the app: Apple and Google only allow paying inside an app through their own shops.

What it costs

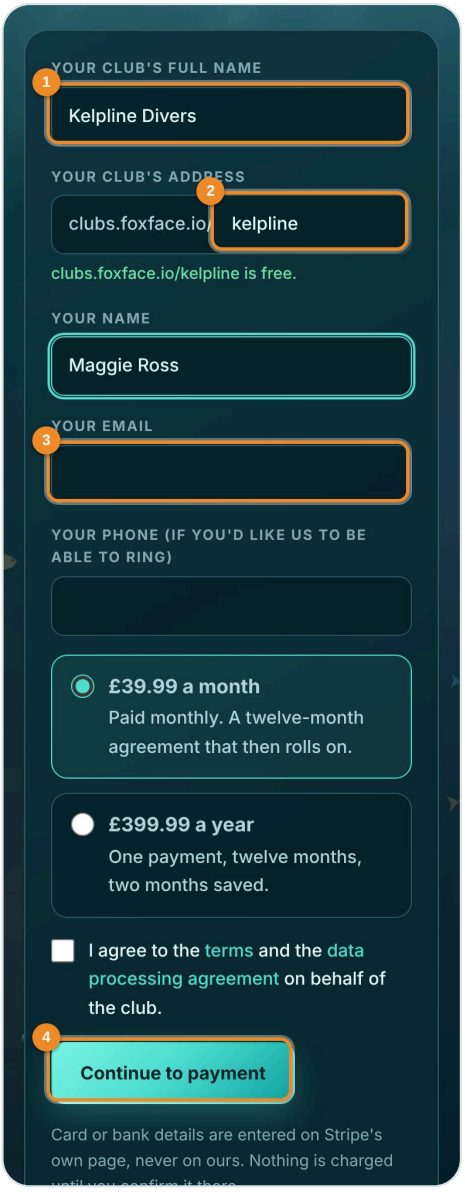

£39.99 a month on a twelve-month agreement, or £399.99 a year. Card or bank details are entered on Stripe's own page, never ours.

Signing up

1. Fill in the form
   The club's full name and the address you'd like (clubs.foxface.io/ and your club's short name), your name, email and phone, and monthly or yearly. Tick the agreement and press Continue to payment.

2. Pay on Stripe
   Nothing is charged until you confirm it there. You then land on a thank-you page, and the club is made straight away.

3. The welcome email
   It has a link to the club's first logins and the starter pack: a guide for the committee, the member guide, the dive manager guide, the data protection notes, and these how-to guides.

1 the club's name, 2 its address, 3 your email, 4 Continue to payment.

The first logins

1. Six starter logins

   They're called Committee 1 to Committee 6 and belong to the posts, not to people. Use one to sign in, then add each committee member by name and send them their own code (guides C2, C3).

2. Then stop using them

   Once everyone has a code in their own name, the starter logins have done their job.

FoxFace Diving how-to guides, guide C14. Pictures are from Kelpline Divers, a made-up club; your club's site shows your own names and kit. Made by FoxFace. Version 2, October 2026.