The FoxFace Diving app on your phone

The free app for iPhone and Android shows your club's site and adds the things only a phone can do: notifications, emergency sheets that work with no signal, and saving files to your phone.

Getting it

Search for FoxFace Diving in the App Store or Google Play. Open it, find your club by name, and sign in exactly as on the website (guide M1).

The same site

Everything in the app is the same as on the website, so every guide here applies. The app just adds the phone's own features.

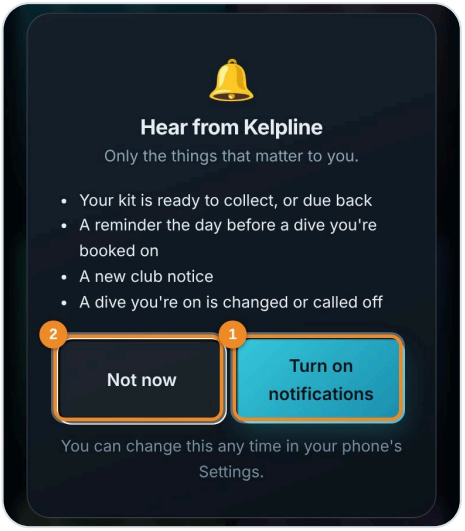

Notifications

1. Say yes when it asks

   After you first sign in, the app asks whether you'd like to hear from the club. Press Turn on notifications and your phone will tell you when your kit is ready to collect or due back, the day before a dive you're on, when there's a new notice, and when a dive you're on is changed or called off.

2. Changed your mind?

   Turn notifications on or off for the app in your phone's Settings at any time. The same messages are always in the bell on the site too (guide M8).

1 Turn on notifications, 2 Not now.

Files, emergency sheets and switching club

1. Saving a file

   Anything the site makes for you to keep, such as the copy of your data (guide M10), is handed to your phone's share sheet: Save to Files, email it, AirDrop it and so on.

2. Emergency sheets with no signal

   If you're a dive manager, open the sheet once while you have signal (guide D1). The app keeps it on the phone until five days after the dive, so it opens on a beach with no reception.

3. More than one club?

   Tap your initials on the home screen, then Switch club, and find the other club by name. You stay signed in to each.

1 Switch club, only in the app.

Registering a club

The app doesn't offer Register your club: Apple and Google only allow paying inside an app through their own shops. A club registers on the website at clubs.foxface.io/register/ (guide C14).

FoxFace Diving how-to guides, guide M13. Pictures are from Kelpline Divers, a made-up club; your club's site shows your own names and kit. Made by FoxFace. Version 2, October 2026.