Booking for your children or family

How a parent books a dive place or club kit for a child, and how to keep a note of family members' own kit.

Where

Kit Bag → My details, under People you keep kit for.

Children the club knows about

The committee adds children on the membership page. Those are the ones you can book dives and kit for. The club charges children its child rate if it has one.

Adding someone

1. Find People you keep kit for
   Children the club has added already appear here. Press Add somebody to add anyone else whose gear you look after, such as a partner who isn't a member.

2. Type their name
   Just a name: they don't get a sign-in of their own, and the club never sees the ones you add. Press Add them. You can't book dives or kit for these: for that, ask the committee to add them to the club.

1 Add somebody, 2 a child the club has added.

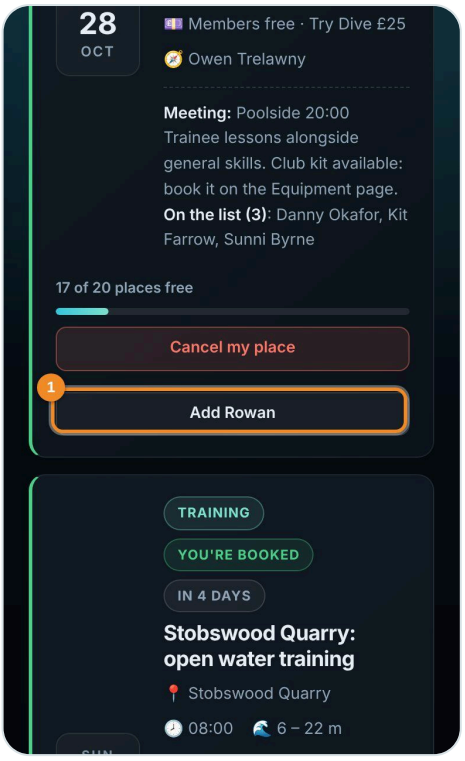

Booking for them

1. Dives

   Book your own place first (guide M3). The dive then shows a second button: Add and the child's name. Press it and they're on the list under your name.

2. Kit

   When you ask for kit (guide M4), the request asks who it's for. Pick your child. Their hire is priced at the club's child rate.

1 Add the child to a dive you're booked on.

Another adult in your house

Two adults each have their own sign-in. To let one book for the other, the committee links you as a household and you each say who may act for you (guide M15).

FoxFace Diving how-to guides, guide M7. Pictures are from Kelpline Divers, a made-up club; your club's site shows your own names and kit. Made by FoxFace. Version 2, October 2026.